

John F. Mansour

John F. Mansour is a Partner at the San Bernardino office of Borton Petrini, LLP. John received his undergraduate degree from the University of Southern California in 1996 and his J.D. from the University of San Diego School of Law in 1999. John specializes in real estate, construction, and contract law.

John relies on his knowledge and experience as a California Real Estate Broker to represent clients in various residential and commercial real estate matters.

On the construction side, John relies on his experience in representing builders, contractors, subcontractors, and homeowners to effectively litigate any construction issue.

John's practice is enhanced by his affiliation on a variety of educational, non-profit, and professional affiliations. John is the current vice president of Habitat for Humanity, San Bernardino Chapter and is also a member of the Building Industry Association.

John is also a real estate and contract law adjunct professor at Platt College and at California Southern University.

John is married to Jannette and is the proud father of daughter Hannah Marie
