Natalie is active in the local community and volunteers with Central California Legal Services where she handles and represents petitioners in pro bono domestic violence restraining order hearings. Natalie is also a court appointed attorney for termination of parental rights cases and as minor's counsel.

Natalie began her legal career working as a paralegal at a large law firm whose primary practice areas were estate planning and probate litigation. After passing the bar, Natalie spent a number of years practicing "inhouse" at a large agricultural corporation and was an assistant attorney in one of the longest administrative hearings in California history.

Natalie is a single mother to three young adults and has one grandchild. In her free time, Natalie enjoys spending time with her extended family and attending bootcamp fitness classes.
